TRYING TO FOOL THE FARMERS.

According to the census of 1890 over one-half the people of the United States are engaged in farming pursuits. Farmers raise the wheat, the cotton, the corn and the pork, which maintain the balance of trade in favor of the United States. The surplus of these products is exported to Europe, which does not produce enough of them to supply the demand, where they have to compete in the market with similar products from Asia, Egypt and South America.

The Dingley bill places a tariff of 25 cents a bushel on wheat, 15 cents a bushel on corn and a proportionately high duty on beef and pork. Though it puts a high tariff on the manufactures of cotton it leaves the raw material on the free list, and for some unaccountable cause does not protect the cotton planter as it does the wheat grower, though a tariff on wheat has no more effect on its price than would a tariff on cotton, as we export large quantities of both products. Every farmer who has wheat to sell knows that the price of grain in San Francisco, or at Lovelocks for that matter, is regulated at Liverpool on the other side of the Atlantic. A tariff of ten dollars, or any other amount, on a bushel of the grain would not enhance its selling price a fraction of a cent. What, therefore, is the object of the 25 cents per bushel duty on wheat in the Dingley bill, except the hope that it will delude the farmers into the belief that it adds that much to the market price of his grain?

The truth is, as has been repeatedly shown, the farmer has to pay a tariff on everything that he purchases, while nothing that he produces a surplus of is benefitted by the tariff. The implements which he uses in cultivating the soil, though they are manufactured in the United States, are sold at lower prices in Europe than he has to pay for them at the factory. The fact has been proclaimed by Senator Nelson of Minnesota in a speech in Congress and Mr. Dingley nor no other high tariff man in Congress or out of Congress has the temerity to deny the statement. The cotton clothing which his children wear in summer and the woollens which they require in winter are taxed, while the wheat, corn and pork which he produces are sold at Liverpool prices less the cost of transportation, insurance, commission, etc. To try to pull the wool over his eyes and make him believe that a tariff on his products will increase their price and recompense him for the increased prices of his clothing and farming implements is on a par with the attempt of Mr. Dingley and his political associates to make him believe that an American silver dollar, which is a legal tender for all debts, would be worth only fifty cents if the act of 1873 should be repealed.

PROBABLY NEARING THE END.

Mrs. Nettie Craven's contest for a share of the Fair estate is not running as smoothly as was at first anticipated. The evidence of W. E. Sanford, of the Crocker Printing Company, showing that in the year 1896, sixteen months after the supposed execution and acknowledgment of the deeds by ex-Notary Cooney, that ten thousand blanks of the precise description used by Cooney in the acknowledgment of the Craven deeds, were ordered and printed in the Crocker establishment was a thunderbolt.

The ex-Notary is charged with perjury, it being alleged that he signed the false acknowledgements of Fair's signature to the deed. Notwithstanding the most earnest efforts on the part of Mrs. Craven's attorneys to shake Sanford's testimony by cross-examination, he stood firm.

It is believed that Mrs. Craven's claim has received a severe blow by the complications that have arisen in the Cooney preliminary examination, and the Fair executors have gained a point that will probably prove fatal to her interest, and will likely end this already notorious case.

EVEN Nevada consumers shouldn't kick. Under the new tariff law every mother's son of us can buy our vocos, our balm of gilead, our beaxrite, our unmanufactured dried blood, our families cocoonis indious, our divi divi, our manjeet and our zaffer all free of taxation. While perhaps the average Nevadan doesn't know what half of these articles are, and never heard of them before, they are all on the free list in the Dingley bill, and it is at least a comfort to know that we are privileged to get in a supply of these commodities without paying tribute to anybody except the apothecary man, who we presume keeps most of them on sale.—Silver State.

News from the seat of war is rather conflicting. Edhem Pasha, at the head of the Turkish army in Thessaly, is said to have sent a note to Greek headquarters at Pharsalos asking for a five-days' armistice. Such an act, in the full flush of victory, is done for effect or is the quintessence of forbearance. The Turk is known to be a diplomat and it may be he is making a rare exhibition for the delectation of the Christians of Europe.—Ogden Standard.

A dispatch from Cape Town says the army reserve for the colony has been notified to hold itself ready for active service.

PHARSALOS CAPTURED BY THE TURKS.

The House to Await the Action of the Senate on the Tariff Bill.

PHARSALOS FALLS.

The Turks Steadily Advancing and Greeks Retreating.

ATHENS, May 6.—The losses of the Greeks in fighting at Valesitino and Pharsalos yesterday were certainly a thousand killed and wounded. The Turks lost fully 6,000 killed and wounded.

A dispatch from the front announces that Prince Constantine's army retired yesterday evening in perfect order upon Domokos, about thirteen miles from Pharsalos, where the Greeks will await the attack of the Turks.

It has been authoritatively announced that the Powers have proposed mediation.

General Smolenski's brigade of Greek troops is about to retreat from Valesitino.

The Ministers of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy have been instructed to propose mediation between Greece and Turkey.

Fighting is proceeding between the Turkish and the Greek forces at Valesitino.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 6.—The Minister of War has received the following dispatches from Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander in Thessaly, dated yesterday evening: "The Turks today won a great victory. The Turkish shells are commencing to fall near Pharsalos. Details will be forwarded later."

A dispatch from Larissa says that the Turks have captured Pharsalos.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The Sundry Civil bill was taken up and the consideration of the Pettigrew amendment, suspending President Cleveland's forestry reserve order, was resumed. Pettigrew, Wilson and Carter severely criticized the order. Allison said that the President and his Cabinet were considering modification of the order and opposed the Pettigrew amendment as to sweeping.

The House to-day by a strict party vote, all Republicans favoring and all Democrats and Populists opposing, adopted a resolution providing that the House meet only on Mondays and Thursdays until otherwise ordered. It was announced that it will be the Republican policy to wait on the Senate's action on the tariff bill.

A fire in the Hotel Palomares at Pomona, Cal., did $300 damage. B. R. Crews, an employee of the hotel, admitted setting the fire and says he had no motive for it. He had been in the employ of the hotel for several years.

Nothing sensational was developed in the Fair-Craven case yesterday. The time was taken up by a legal wrangle concerning the admission of the evidence of Crocker & Co.'s clerk regarding the printing of certain legal blanks.

The national quadriennial festival of the North American Gymnastic Union (Turners) opened at St. Louis yesterday. There are over 10,000 strangers in the city and 4,000 active Turners will strive for the laurel leaf, the only reward offered for contests. The festival will continue four days. The decorations about the city are very fine.

Wm. D. Howland, treasurer of the Howland Mills, New Bedford Manufacturing Company and the Roth Spinning Company, was found dead in the dock at the foot of North street yesterday. The companies with which Howland was connected are in the hands of receivers, and financial difficulties are supposed to be the cause of Howland's suicide.

Mrs. Joseph Polkinghorne of Austin, has received $2,000 as an insurance on the life of her late husband who was a member of Hope Lodge No. 11, A. O. U. W. Since the organization of the lodge at Austin, $40,000 has been paid to the beneficiaries of deceased members.

DODDER—LOVE VINE—A BAD WEED.

(Newspaper Bulletin No. 27.)

One of the worst weeds of agriculture now established within the Truckee Valley, and other parts of the State, is Dodder, or Love Vine. It is a pest of alfalfa fields and is fast becoming a most serious menace to profitable alfalfa production. Already certain farms within the Truckee Valley are overrun by the weed, which seems to defy eradication. In consideration of the ease with which the plant spreads and becomes established, it is evident that future immunity from its destructive presence will be very nearly proportional to the amount of effort employed in getting rid of it where already established and keeping it from fields thus far unaffected. This department of the Experiment Station has had no opportunity to pursue field experiments in the eradication of the weed in fields already stocked, so no results along this line can be given. However, an account of the plant's habits and the character of its seeds may not be wholly amiss at this season.

A—Stem of alfalfa encircled by flowering stem of dodder. B—Single flower of dodder.

The plant is a parasite, incapable of producing its own food, and thus depends for its maintenance upon the food elaborated by some other plant. This particular species of dodder, Cuscuta epithymum, confines its preferences in the main, if not wholly, to the alfalfa plant, which it infests throughout this country and in Europe. Statements of this species infesting clovers (Trifolium) have been seen by the writer, but his own observations in badly infested fields of mixed alfalfa and red clover failed to show the infestation of clover by this species of dodder. Other species of dodder do infest the clovers, but not in the Truckee Valley at the present time, so far as the writer knows. This particular dodder produces a mass of smooth, reddish yellow wiry stems which encircle the alfalfa stems, where the latter are pierced by small suckers from the stems of the dodder. These serve to draw the nourishment from the alfalfa, resulting in a short, sickly growth of the latter. The alfalfa usually survives, but produces but half a crop or less. With the advance of summer globular clusters of flowers tinged with purple, are produced along the leafless stems of the dodder. Each flower develops from one to four seeds, and as many flowers are produced the seed production is immense.

Seeds of dodder. A, much enlarged; B, natural size; C, coiled embryo.

The seeds are minute, light colored, often tinged with green or purple; globular or irregularly rounded, the surface very finely roughened. Their form and appearance should permit their easy detection among alfalfa seeds.

Seeds of alfalfa. A, enlarged, side view; B, same, edge view; C, natural size; D, embryo enlarged.

which are larger. The embryo, furthermore, is not at all like that of alfalfa, being a simple cylindrical coiled body.

The seeds can easily reseed a field once occupied, but would scarcely reach a distant field except through being carried in some manner. One of the commonest methods of dissemination occurs in the transportation of alfalfa hay. The weight of the ripened clusters of dodder flowers permits bunches of infested hay to drop from the load, each bunch carrying hundreds of seeds.

The development of the plant is peculiar. The seeds germinate in the ground, the young stems emerging from side to side until a stem of alfalfa is found, about which it at once twines, the root then dying. If no such stem is found the young dodder plant perishes, owing to its inability to take nourishment from soil food.

The plant is an annual one, starting anew from the seed each year. While the eradication of the weed is difficult or impossible without injury to the alfalfa, it may be found that burning carefully before the seeds ripen with a possible addition of salt to kill young plants will be successful. Field experiment and experience must decide this. As a last resort the following of the infested field or a judicious crop rotation should be successful and might at the end repay the loss of the alfalfa for a few seasons.

OLINGHOUSE GOLD.

An Interview With Men who Visited the Camp.

Sheriff McInnis and Commissioner Beck visited Wadsworth Wednesday with a view of visiting the Olinghouse Canyon gold mines. Mr. Beck returning to Reno Wednesday evening.

The JOURNAL reporter asked Mr. Beck last evening as to his opinion of the mines, and he replied:

"Sheriff McInnis and I went to Wadsworth on Wednesday morning's train with the intention of visiting the now more or less famous Olinghouse Canyon gold prospects. At Wadsworth we were met by Mr. Hummel of the Dispatch and Mr. Linton of the Nevada House, who provided a strong two-horse double-seated wagon, and we were soon on our way to the mining district. Of course we had to be provided with something to stay the inner man on our journey, but soon discovered that our good friends Hummel and Linton had very thoughtfully filled the larder with sandwiches, hardboiled eggs and other picnicing necessities. After a pleasant ride we arrived at the head of Olinghouse Canyon, which is northwesterly from Wadsworth. It was now time for refreshments and we stopped at a spring formerly controlled by Mr. Olinghouse and used in connection with his milk ranch, not of course for the purpose of watering the milk, but for the use of his stock. Here we took lunch and then started for the mountains, a mile away. After a two-hour's climb on the sides of precipitous mountains we reached the Olinghouse claim, owned and worked by Proctor and Noyes. These boys have an open cut on the end of their claim and are taking out pay ore. We spent some little time in investigating their output and found very many evidences of gold, which were apparent to the naked eye. The prospects of their claim are very flattering. I took what I considered a fair average of the face of their drift and assayed it yesterday, and find it assays $28 in gold.

"About half a mile northeast is the Brooks McLane mine, which we visited. It is known as the Blue Mountain mine, being named after a round cone on which it is situated on the south side, and within 200 feet of the top where the original discovery was made.

"Mr. McLane has an open cut of about ten feet, where he has at least a carload of good pay stuff. Going over the top of this cone or mountain to the north we found the same general formation, thus indicating that this ledge is at least 1400 feet in length. The ore on each side is very much more than pay ore.

"Next we were shown what I had the honor of naming, the Gold Wire Ledge, which parallels the one just described and on the same location. In this ledge there is a formation of quartz and gold which is, at least remarkable. Slabs of quartz ore are taken out, which, if struck with a hammer, will break into a dozen or more pieces and still the whole mass will be held together by wires of gold.

"The amount of development work on these locations is as yet very limited, so I don't care to express my judgment as to the possible merits of the district or the amount of ore in sight, but I am willing to go on record as saying that the Brooks McLane location is the most remarkable I have ever visited on this coast."

The Doctors Gibson.
Dr. Alex. Gibson will return to Cedarville to resume his business there. He has a number of interests in that part of the country that requires his attention and that he cannot afford to neglect. During his residence in Reno he has made many friends who will regret his going away, but he will doubtless visit Reno frequently. Dr. S. O. Gibson will remain in Reno and this point will still be the headquarters of the Gibson Brothers. Since coming to Reno both have been very successful in the practice of their profession, having performed a number of difficult operations as well as treated many cases of chronic and other diseases that it has been usual for sufferers to visit Sacramento or San Francisco for relief. While Reno loses the genial and good natured Doctor Alex, who still has Doctor S. O. Gibson as a permanent resident. Read his new card in this issue.

A Strange Proceeding.
The News last evening gives an item regarding the burial of a Chinaman who died at Carson, and says that the dead man's countrymen would not remove the body or even touch it, but removed the bedclothes that covered him with a pitchfork. Some of the officers of the town finally persuaded the Chinamen to employ an Indian to put the body in a coffin for $1. What the Chinaman died of is not stated, but judging from the item it is presumed that he had some loathsome disease. If this is so the officers should be charged with and prosecuted for criminal carelessness.

Electric Bitters.
Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alternative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison, headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness, yield to Electric Bitters. Fifty cents and $1 per bottle at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

A Strong Law Firm.

The card of the new law firm of Wren & Julien appears in to-day's issue. These gentlemen have formed a law partnership and their offices will be located in the Eureka Block.

Both gentlemen are well known throughout the State of Nevada, as well as in the courts of California.

Mr. Wren's reputation as one of the most successful lawyers on the coast, is well established. He is a positive man in all things, and advice from him is always to the point and can be relied upon. In mining, land and water, or general business affairs, he is thoroughly posted and his opinion and judgment are seldom at fault.

Mr. Julien is so well known in this community that it is hardly necessary to refer to him. Everybody knows Tom Julien, and many, very many people, particularly in Washoe county, are indebted to him for advice and accommodations that have saved them serious trouble and expense.

The firm is a strong one in law circles and its patrons may depend on receiving the best of treatment in every instance where either one member or both are employed in a case.

Another Hale & Norcross Sensation.
The Enterprise publishes the following special from San Francisco in its issue of yesterday:

"Information of a sensational nature charging several well known mining men connected with the Hale & Norcross litigation with forgery of the official seal of the Hale & Norcross Silver Mining Company and the issuance of fraudulent certificates of the stock of the company has been lodged with District Attorney Barnes by Attorneys Baggett and Fox. The trouble has its origin in the differences existing between the stockholders of the company for some time past. Recently the Grayson faction held a meeting and elected a board of directors in opposition to the Fox faction, and as the law requires that certificates of election shall be stamped with the official seal of the company, which was in the possession of Secretary Collins. It is alleged that the Grayson board procured a facsimile with which to stamp them. This, it is claimed by the Fox faction, constitutes a felony under the provisions of Section 470 of the penal code."

Three Thousand Tons of Bullion.
Under the above caption the Virginia Chronicle gives a detailed report of the record of the gold and silver product of the Consolidated California and Virginia mines in less than twenty years; $130,569,734 83 in value have been taken from the mines and $77,000,000 have been paid in dividends.

"This yield in that brief period is unequalled in ancient or modern mining records.

"The El Cacho of Peru and several mining properties in Old Mexico are credited with a greater total bullion yield, the extraction of which required centuries, but the statement of the output of the latter properties has been greatly exaggerated and no reliable record of their total product is obtainable.

"The statement of the yield of the Consolidated Virginia and California mines from the discovery of the bonanza in 1874 up to 1894 and the product of those properties after their consolidation in 1895, is taken from the official records and is therefore perfectly reliable."

Marvelous Results.
From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamonddale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at River Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store. Regular size, 50 cts. and $1.

Anxious Relatives Relieved.
It was feared yesterday when the names of those lost in the great fire at Paris were read that the name of "Miss Parks" or "Corkins" the only American victim, might be meant for Miss Sparks, daughter of John Sparks of this country, she being in Paris at present. Telegrams and cablegrams were sent last night for information, and at a late hour an answer came relieving Miss Sparks' anxious relatives. The American lady who was lost in the fire is from Philadelphia.

the Telephone Worked.
According to a Kentucky paper, when the telephone was first introduced in that state an old farmer who did not exactly understand the working of the invention bought a new pair of boots for his son, who lived down in Texas. He hung the footwear across the wire at sundown one evening. During the night some one took the boots and placed a pair of old ones across the wire. Next morning the old gentleman went out, and, to his delight, he saw the old boots. He hastened into the house, exclaiming to his wife: "Say, Sal, this here telephone is the best thing yet. John got his boots last night, and I'm blessed if he didn't send the old uns home!"

A Checkered Career.
In the recent sweep of the Bois de Boulogne for disreputable characters a tramp with a strange history was taken. He had been a sailor and master of a sailing vessel, had undertaken to explore Abyssinia and had ended by becoming chief cook to King Menelek. His grey homestead, however, made his escape, and on reaching France had been unable to find work.

Why He Traveled.
First Englishman—Going to America to get a wife?
Second Englishman—Aw, yass. 'Are you?'
"Naw, I'm going, dantcherknow, to get away from one."—New York Times.

Western Australia's supply of jarrah and karri, the hard woods used for street pavements, is practically inexhaustible. The jarrah (Eucalyptus marginati) covers 14,000 square miles of the country and the karri (E. diversicolor) 2,000 square miles more.

According to a musical journal, there are in London at this moment 244,000 females who are learning music.

Appointed Court Reporter.
Miss Hallie Williams has been appointed court reporter for Yolo county, Cal., by Judge Gaddis. She passed a very satisfactory examination, surpassing the requirements of the law, which provides that the reporter must write 150 words a minute and read them back. She succeeded in writing 173 words a minute for five consecutive minutes and read them without the slightest hesitation.

Drink in the Middle Ages.
The middle ages lasted about 1,000 years, and in that period the feudal lords hunted the fox or the stag all day and went to bed dead drunk every night of their lives. Their existence was one grand carousal. Kings, princes, lords and vassals lived in their cups.—New York Press.

the soft morning air.
Old Sol, who has looked on many scandalous sights, looked on this and hid his face under a cloud, refusing to witness, for never before had the ethics of shipboard life been so outrageously violated. A squat captain and two 6 foot officers, nearly black in the face from rage and exertion, with hands clasped over their heads, hopped and skipped around a narrow stage to the accompaniment of pistol reports harmoniously disposed among the notes of a whistled tune, while bullets grazed their feet and an unkempt, disfigured and sore headed crew looked on and chuckled. When the mate, weak from loss of blood, fell and rolled to the deck, the leader stopped the entertainment.
"Now, gentlemen," he said in his serious voice, "I'm called Pecon Tom, and I've had considerable experience in my time, but this is my first with human creatures so weak and thoughtless that they'll drug and steal three men without takin' their guns away from them. And so on account of this shiftless improvidence I reckon this boat will have to turn round and go back."
They rolled and kicked the two mates to the rail, lifted the captain to his feet and said:
"Give the right and proper order to yer men to turn this boat round."
With his face working convulsively Captain Belchior glanced at his captors, at his eager, waiting crew, at the wheel without a helmsman, at a darkening of the water on the starboard bow to the southward, up aloft and back again to the three frowning muzzles.
"One hand to the wheel," square in main and ere' jack yards," he called. He was conquered.
With a hurrah, which indicated the sincerity of these orders, the crew sprang to obey them, and with foreyards braced to starboard and head sheets flat the ship Wilmington paid off, wore around and, bringing the young breeze on the port quarter, steadied down to a course for Sandy Hook, which the captain, with hands released, but still under the influence of those threatening pistols, worked out from the mate's dead reckoning. Then he was pinioned again, but allowed to pace the deck and watch his ship, while the two officers were kept under the rail, sometimes stepped upon or kicked and often admonished on the evil of their ways.
Early passengers on the East river ferryboats were treated to a novel sight next morning, which they appreciated according to their nautical knowledge. A lofty ship with skysails and royals hanging in the buntlines and jibs tailing ahead like flags was charging up the harbor before a humming southerly breeze, followed by an elbowing crowd of puffing, whistling, snub nosed tugs. It was noticeable that whenever a fresh tug arrived alongside little white clouds left her quarter deck, and that tug suddenly sheered off to take a position in the parade astern.

Aboard of Governors island topgallant balyards were let go, as were those of the jibs, but no clewing up or hauling down was done, nor were any men seen on her fore-castle deck getting ready lines or ground tackle. She passed the Battery and up the East river, craft of all kinds getting out of her way, for it was obvious that something was wrong with her, until, rounding slowly to a starboard wheel, with canvas rattling and running gear in bights, she headed straight for a slip partly filled with cannibals. Then her topgallant balyards were let go, and three heavy yards came down by the run, breaking across the caps, and amid a grinding, creaking and crashing of riven timbers and a deafening din of applauding tug whistles, she plowed her way into the nest of cannibals and came to a stop.
Then was a begonia. Down her black sides, by ropes and chain plates, to the wrecked and sinking cannibals, came with bags or chests, some without, came sailor men, who climbed to the dock, and, answering no questions of the gathering crowd of dock loungers, scattered into the side streets, while three men appeared on the rail, who shook their fists and swore and shouted for the apprehension of three dark faced, long haired fellows with big hats.
In the light of later developments it was known that the police responded and, with the assistance of boarding house runners, gathered in that day nearly all of this derelict crew, even to the cautious boatswain, who were promptly and severely punished for mutiny and desertion. But the later developments failed to show that the three dark faced men were ever seen again.—Morgan Robinson in New York Sun.

The Law to Meet It.
Gazzani—Am going to have my neighbor's chickens arrested. The roosters waken me every morning at 3 or 4 o'clock and spoil my rest.
Maddox—There is no law which authorizes the arrest of chickens.
Gazzani—Well, there's a law which forbids the use of foul language.—Detroit Free Press.

A Practical Prima donna.
"Do you think," asked the young man who was preparing some interviews with great people on trivial topics, "that a light opera singer should marry if she is really and truly ambitious to succeed in her art?"
The queen of burlesque stopped reading what her press agent had written long enough to respond:
"Surely, sir, you cannot be serious. If we didn't marry, how could the papers say any thing about our divorces?"
